In this essay, the development and challenges of both energy storage materials and systems (the mechanical, electrochemical, and thermal energy storage systems) in Oceania will be illustrated on the academic and engineering fields.

The most commonly utilized renewable energy technologies across Oceania include solar photovoltaic systems, wind power, and hydroelectricity. Australia has been the most active in renewable energy transformation, with ambitious targets and substantial investments in large-scale wind and solar.

Small-scale lithium-ion residential battery systems in the German market suggest that between 2014 and 2020, battery energy storage systems (BESS) prices fell by 71%, to USD 776/kWh. With their rapid cost declines, the role of BESS for stationary and transport applications is gaining prominence.

According to PV Magazine (March 2024), the cost of energy storage systems has been steadily declining in recent years, largely due to increased adoption of the technologies and the expansion of grid storage in major markets like China and the U.S. This price reduction is reminiscent of the declines.
