The answer in 2025 depends on multiple factors, such as system size, technology, and specific application. In this guide, we will break down the cost structure, demonstrate the value of different solar energy storage solutions, and help you understand how to choose the best system for your needs.

The 2023 NECP proposes a 173% increase (or 85 GW) in renewable capacity by 2030 from current capacities¹; storage² is expected to increase by 487%, or 15 GW from installed capacity. Long Duration Energy Storage (LDES) can ensure renewable energy is utilised in the system while decreasing reliance.

However, despite another wet year in 2025, price spreads have risen back to 2022 levels. This effect is due to an increase in solar supply alongside stable year-over-year demand. 5. Extreme negative prices are rare Until 2024, Spain had never experienced negative wholesale electricity prices.

Separately, the target for energy storage deployment will more than double between 2025 and 2030, with 9.2GW expected in 2025 and nearly 19GW in 2030. An ambitious target for the country where energy storage has yet to soar— due to a lack of regulation for the technology —at a similar level to solar PV.

The Spanish government expects that the installed photovoltaic capacity will reach 56GW in 2025 and 76GW in 2030. The Spanish government is offering 160 million euros ($170 million) in subsidies for energy storage projects, aiming to finance 600MW of projects coming online in 2026. This includes.
